

Ox Yoke Retreat

Ox Yoke Retreat is situated in the scenic high desert in Twentynine Palms, California, approximately 150 miles east of Los Angeles. Paramahansa Yogananda spent much time in the Twentynine Palms desert meditating deeply and working on his writings. Ever thoughtful of others, he envisioned a similar oasis of serenity where devotees could find peace, strength, and spiritual renewal.

This dream was realized when Self-Realization Fellowship made the Ox Yoke property available to a committee of lay disciples, who assumed responsibility for its care and management. The committee transformed the three authentic adobe structures into retreat houses with modern facilities. In a radiant desert setting, Ox Yoke, with its rugged beauty and charm, now provides the ideal atmosphere for silence solitude and meditation.

Who may attend...

Ox Yoke Retreat is available to Self-Realization-Fellowship Kriyabans, or students accompanied by a Kriyaban. Accommodations are separate for men and women except that one married couple may occupy a retreat house. Children sixteen years or older may accompany their parents. No pets please, Consult your temple Ox Yoke coordinator regarding Self-Realization Fellowship occupancy policy for men, women, and married couples. The coordinator will also tell you what is necessary to bring with you.

For Reservations...

Reservations are required to ensure your stay, as retreat facilities are limited at Ox Yoke. Only retreatants with reservations have access to the secured retreat grounds.

Ox Yoke is supported solely by contributions. To help maintain this wonderful retreat haven, we suggest the following minimum donation to help meet the cost of operations.

Basic Rate: $50.00 per person ($75.00 per couple) per night
